

Are you concerned about peanut allergy in your 4-12 month old baby?

Does your baby have severe eczema or possible egg allergy?

If so, you may be eligible for a study to understand peanut allergy in babies.

This study is being conducted in conjunction with a visit for food allergy evaluation in the Division of Allergy & Immunology. This is not a treatment study.

If you are interested in learning more or would like more information, please contact Opinderjit Kaur at 312-227-5391 or the Division of Allergy & Immunology at 312-227-6010.

Some reimbursement for time and expenses will be provided.

This study is Lurie Children's IRB 2017-1317, Infants with Moderate-Severe Eczema and/or Egg Allergy and Peanut Allergy: Discovering a Significant Genotype, Dr. Rajesh Kumar. The content of this flier/brochure/e-mail/etc. has been approved by the Lurie Children's IRB.
